

Figure 4.1: The vanishing gradient problem for RNNs. The shading of the nodes in the unfolded network indicates their sensitivity to the inputs at time one (the darker the shade, the greater the sensitivity). The sensitivity decays over time as new inputs overwrite the activations of the hidden layer, and the network ‘forgets’ the first inputs.